

Part 2. A Logo Fable Revisited

Remember the Logo fable at the beginning of the book? The tortoise challenged the hare to a race across the forest and won. She was slow. But she moved steadily step-by-step, observing everything around here, learning as she went.

The turtle, on the other hand, scooted all over the place. He was confident that he had time for a sno-cone, time for a nap, and all sorts of other things before he had to get to the finish line.

But he blew it! He lost.

Look what he saw along the way. He went off on many different rabbit trails and saw many things the tortoise did not see...did many things the tortoise did not do.

If you look at it like that, maybe the hare wasn't totally stupid that day.

Be Like the Hare

The first part of this book was written one step at a time. We were thinking more about young beginners and how they could get the most from their Great Logo Adventure.

Part 2 of the book is more like a group of ideas to explore. As you go through the rest of this book, you may want to be like the hare. You may want to skip over some things and then come back to them.

Make sure to take a look at the procedures that came with this book. You'll find some procedures there that are not in this book...some are challenges for you to solve...some are new subjects to explore. Of course, when you discover something new, you may want to go back and look at earlier chapters and expand on those ideas.

Using On-line Help

There are many more things to learn about MSW Logo than are in this book. So don't forget the On-line Help. There's lots of other ideas there...many more new things to do.

What ever you do, make it a Great Logo Adventure.
